KEITH URBAN

Contemporary-country superstar Keith Urban reflects on how 'Whisper Jennings' indie spirit inspired him more than 20 years ago in Australia, why Mark Knopfler became his first guitar hero, and how he rehabilitated many of his treasured vintage axes after the tragic Nashville flood of 2010.

FORGOTTEN HEROES: CORNELL DUPREE

Besides playing on so many sessions and hits that they called him "Mr. 2500," Cornell Dupree was a favorite of major label producers and sessionists alike because he could come in and lay down right, soulful tracks to Aretha Franklin, and then show up the next day to lay a home run for Paul Simon or Miles Davis.

KEN PARKER ARCHTOPS

Though he shook up the industry in 1959 with the Fly—the most unique archtop design the electric world had seen in years—the more than 50 years now his primary passion has

STANLEY CLARKE

Fusion legend Stanley Clarke talks about his double-bass roots, his love of Alvin Lee, why all bassists should jam with other 6-stringers, and his recent reunion album with fellow Bassists to Famous bandmates Chick Corea and Larry White.

INSEPARABLE

Guitars often help their owners get through tough times, but few have seen times as tough as those faced by British Royal Air Force pilot and prisoner of war Alf Brown and his 1940s German archtop.

2011 NY AMP SHOW

Premier Guitar heads to Passaic, New Jersey, to scope out the annual boutique-amp extravaganza.

LAST CHANCE TO REASON

Maine-based math-rockers Last Chance to Reason meld face-melting chops with social-bonding music theory and their own epic Alvin-style video game to create every notion you have about youth, moral, and gaming culture.
